Q: How to add a low pass filter in Matlab? I have a vector V with the values between (0, 0.5) and (0.5, 1) How can I add a low-pass filter to this data (Let's say I want to only retain the data between (0.25,0.5) and (0.75, 1)) so that I can view only the peak and trough? A: If you want to apply a filter to a 2-D matrix, use fspecial. To apply a low-pass filter to values in a vector, use filter. >> t = [0 0.25 0.5 0.75 1]; % your data >> y = filter(ones(1,length(t)),filter(ones(1,length(t)),'low')) % original >> y = filter(ones(1,length(t)),'low') % return only low values >> y = fspecial('low'); % apply your filter >> y = y(t) % return filtered value y = 0.5000 0.2500 0.0000 0.7500 Basically, you have the values of your input vector t as output of the filter, with the values of filter = [1;1;1;1] in your case. m, 19 l, 12 t? 12 t Two letters picked without replacement from wwhjwzwwwhjjw.
